COUNTY VOTERS TURN DOWN SCHOOL TAX

SHIRTSLEEVE COMMENCEMENT—More than 500 Oberlin students march to graduation ceremonies in Oberlin, Ohio, minus the usual caps and gowns — first time in the college's history. The graduates voted to forego the setup in protest against Indochina and the fatalities at Kent State. The rental money is to go for campus welfare and social programs.

Seen & Heard Around Murray

Mowing yesterday evening and a Catbird swooped in to land on the small post that stands by the Buckeyes. He looked at us and we looked at him. Stopped the mower to get a good look since we were not over six feet from him.

He is a streamlined rascal. He cocked his head and fixed us with one eye, then turned his head to look with the other eye. As you know birds have an eye on each side of their head, and close up, they have to turn their head to one side in order to see something clearly.

We continued our mowing and when we got within four feet of him, he took off for some point where there was less racket.

We got an "A" for exercising our right to vote and the election officials get an "A" for helping us.

We went to vote and since we live outside the city we got to vote on the school tax issue. We voted for the congressional office but when we tried to vote on the school tax, the thing would not budge.

After consultation with the election officials, they asked us to wait until they could figure the machine out so we could vote on the tax. The directions on the side of the machine said "pull out lever number one for someone to vote on the school tax". But, lever number one would not pull out. So they called Marvin Harris, who in turn arrived on the scene.

Seems that the machine had not been set up for anyone to vote on the tax issue. This is understandable since we have voted at Murray High for years and probably we were the only one with the right to vote on the school tax issue at this particular voting place.

Anyway Flavi fixed it so we could register our vote on the tax issue. The election officials were nice and apologized for making us wait, but we did not mind since it was obvious that they were all working toward the point where we could register our vote. First time anything like this has happened to us.

Stubblefield Reelected In Representative Race

Calloway County residents rejected a school tax yesterday which was to have been used to upgrade present educational facilities for the county school children, including the construction of two new elementary schools. Voters in the city and county also returned Congressman Frank A. Stubblefield to his post in Washington. Stubblefield easily won over Bobby Joe Sims, Murray State University professor who sought the position also.

Stubblefield won over Sims by a vote of 3394 to 1485 in Calloway County and the vote in the First District was Stubblefield 20,401, Sims 7,969.

The school tax lost in the county by a vote of 1601 against and 1157 for the tax.

The tax would have produced revenue for the construction of two new elementary schools in the county and only county residents were qualified to vote on the issue.

It is generally considered that one of the principal reasons for the failure of the tax was the unfortunate timing of the reassessment of county property just before the election.

State authorities handed down an ultimatum to local tax commissioners that they must bring county assessments into line or face a blanket raise in county assessments of possibly 30 per cent.

Those persons in the county whose assessment was close to 100 per cent of sale value were not affected, however property assessed well below 100 per cent of sale value was raised considerably in assessment.

This increase in assessment for many county residents had a direct effect on the voting for the school tax issue, it is believed.

Residents in the county voted on a 13c per $100 assessment with the proceeds going toward construction and none of it going for teacher salaries.

Since Congressman Stubblefield had no Republican opposition in the general election, his election in the primary yesterday is tantamount to election.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Evidence that the market decline is over is "still lacking," according to Standard & Poor's Corp.

Investor psychology is "badly battered" and the market is "in the grip of emotionalism," it says, adding that once the bottom is reached, "a good deal of time may be required" to form a solid base for a lasting upswing. Thus, it says, long term investors should "avoid the temptation to buy prematurely."

The long market slump, an "inevitable shake out of the speculative excesses of the late 60's" also has dragged down the prices of "quality issues," according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. These solid stocks, the Institute believes, will be the probable leaders in the upturn "when it comes — as it must."

The present market slide, according to the Dines Letter is "obviously one of the worst crashes of the century." But the newsletter optimistically predicts that "one of the great buying opportunities of a lifetime lies just ahead... a new generation of millionaires will be spawned." At the same time it urges investors to maintain a "low profile" and stand back "for yet another week" until the market "simmers down."

F. J. Millett, Goodbody & Co. economist and general partner, says the 17-month decline has "wiped out the entire advance of the 1960's" for stocks in the Dow Jones industrial average. Although a bottom can be determined only after a period of base building, Millett sees the current despair over the economy, corporate profits and security prices as "typical of the termination of major bear markets."

300 BURGLARIES—Jack Ledwell, 21, and (lower) brother Larry, 17, are accounting for a matter of 300 burglaries in Houston, Tex., in past five years. About $3 million loot.

"Take My Hands" was the theme of the banquet with Mrs. Ray P. Moore, GA director, as the mistress of ceremonies.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the church prepared the food for the banquet which was served by the members of the Young Women's Association of the church.

Special decorations for the banquet included arrangements of yellow and white daisies with yellow candles. In the center of the room was a table on which was placed an open Bible to the scripture, Ecclesiastes 9:10, with candles and the GA emblems.

Guests at the banquet other than the mothers of the GA's were Mrs. H. C. Chiles, Mrs. Rudolph Howard, Mrs. Robert C. Miller, and Mrs. R. A. Slinker.

Avoid the practice of over-drying clothes which have synthetic fibers in the fabric. This may cause fibers to become brittle and thereby reduce wear, or cause excessive shrinkage.

When working with interior or exterior latex paints, it's a good idea to wash the brush in clear water occasionally. This will prevent quick-drying latex paint from building up and hardening at the base of the bristles. When you have finished work for the day, thoroughly wash all brushes so they will be clean and ready for the next day's use.

To keep latex paint surfaces clean, use soap or detergent suds to wipe up drips and spatters within 30 minutes. Delay makes it more difficult to remove such spots.

Packaging for the freezer must be airtight to assure success. Containers and wrappings should be moisture-proof and sealed carefully to keep natural moisture in, and air out. Use special freezer foils, papers, tapes and containers.

Cheese was made and eaten in biblical times more than 4,000 years ago. Asian travelers brought it to Europe, where for years the difficult art of cheese-making remained a secret passed from father to son.

Extinction threatens animal life in U.S.

By JAMES O. CLIFFORD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—If man is really propagating and polluting himself out of existence as many scientists say, he is pushing hundreds of species of animals over the edge into extinction first.

The federal government estimates that 76 kinds of mammals, birds, reptiles and fishes in the United States alone are either threatened with extinction or reduced to a perilous fraction of their once-vast numbers. Conservation groups estimate the number worldwide at more than 800.

They include such familiar animals as the American alligator, the eastern timber wolf, the giant California condor, the grizzly bear, the whooping crane, several varieties of whale, and even the national emblem, the bald eagle.

There are less than 100 California condors still in existence, and less than 70 whooping cranes left in the wilds.

Only a few hundred grizzlies still roam the mountains of Colorado, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming. No one knows how many alligators are left, but poachers in the Florida swamps are killing them off at a perilous rate.

Heavy hunting has reduced the eastern timber wolf to about 300 to 400, all in Minnesota. Pesticides kill off the brown pelican. The whooping crane started dying when man took over its habitat. Ranchers shoot the bald eagle, mistaking it for the golden eagle, a threat to livestock.

Americans have already killed off one species and nearly stamped out another in some of the most awesome wildlife slaughter in history.

Once millions of passenger pigeons flew over parts of the continent in such numbers they darkened the sky. Tens of millions of American bison roamed the plains.

About 50 years ago the last passenger pigeon died in a zoo, and bison were reduced to a few hundred stragglers. The species was brought back from the edge of oblivion by a concerned public.

David Brower, president of the militant conservation organization Friends of the Earth, says worldwide the number of species and races known to be in danger of extinction is 861, and 131 have become extinct in the last 300 years.

Many problems

These wild creatures face many problems: the loss of space to live, death through pollution and hunting, capture of specimens for zoos, the pet market and large scale research.

"If you add into this already unbalanced equation the incredible demand for skins, fur and feathers, prompted by the fashion and interior decorating market, then the outlook for wild creatures is very grim indeed," Brower said.

In the interest of saving these imperiled creatures, some of America's most fashionable women have sworn off furs in a pledge drive started here recently by Brower's group.

More than 1,500 persons have signed the pledge to stop buying the thousands of fashion and home products made from the skin, fur, feathers and horns of wild animals.

They include such names as actresses Lauren Bacall and Tammy Grimes, model Mimi London and Mrs. Jacob Javits, wife of the Senator from New York.

"We feel strongly that wildlife is of immense importance as part of the ecological community," said Joan McIntyre of Friends of the Earth.

"By cutting off the demand for wild animal products at the point of sale, we may achieve the time necessary to evaluate the world wildlife picture."

"Our only course if we wish to save the lives of wild creatures is to dissolve the market," said Mrs. John Fell Stevenson, daughter-in-law of the late Adlai Stevenson, and one of the signers of the pledge.

It takes a lot of animals to make just one item. It requires 12 baby ocelots to make a coat, 10 lynx, 25 opossums and up to 10 raccoons.

Police blamed the high homicide rate on easy access to weapons and U.S. Supreme Court rulings, which, they said, block law enforcement efforts.

"Guns are easily obtained at discount houses, not in Cleveland, but in immediate suburbs," said police Sgt. Edward Manney. "I understand guns can be obtained by a signature or driver's license and little other identification."

An existing gun bill in Cleveland requires anyone purchasing a firearm within the city of Cleveland to have a permit. The permit must be obtained from the police chief and the applicant must have character references from two persons.

The seller must make a detailed report to the police chief. Getting a permit is so cumbersome that many skirt the city law by going into the suburbs to buy weapons.

Hit Supreme Court Police are unanimous in condemning the Supreme Court decisions as contributing to the rising homicide rate.

"We used to have what we called the pool room detail," said Sgt. Robert DeFrantis. "We took all the rookies and we shook down the trouble spots. You could hear the weapons fall on the floor inside when we got to the door."

Manney said police no longer can make "exploratory searches in bars as before."

"Part of our duties were to search suspicious looking persons," Manney said. "But because of the court rulings, we cannot do so now."

"The homicide rise came just after Supreme Court rulings on search and seizure and exploratory searches. Now we have to tell the prisoner his rights. It has been my experience that he recites his rights to you. He knows how far he can go."

Gerber agreed guns are "too easily available."

The summer replacement for "The Jim Nabors Hour" on CBS Thursday evenings will be "Happy Days," a series recalling highlights of comedy and music of the 1930s and 1940s. The cast is headed by Louis Nye, Chuck McCann and the comedy team of Bob (Elliott) and Ray (Goulding). Big bands will be a feature.

Cleveland homicides set a record in '69

By JOHN J. SPETZ

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Cleveland recorded 295 homicides in 1969—an average of about one every 30 hours.

It was the worst homicide record in the city's history and exceeded the previous year's total by 99. In 1967 the Lake Erie city recorded 166 killings and in 1966 there were 155.

The homicides last year averaged one for every 2,748 persons in Cleveland. Detroit, with twice the population of Cleveland, recorded 488 homicides, one killing for every 3,319 persons. New York City, with a population 10 times that of Cleveland, had one homicide for every 7,801.

Cuyahoga County Coroner Dr. Samuel R. Gerber said 236 of the victims last year were killed by guns. Police said the most popular weapon was a $10 pistol imported from West Germany. Ninety-eight of the homicides remained unsolved.

Police blamed the high homicide rate on easy access to weapons and U.S. Supreme Court rulings, which, they said, block law enforcement efforts.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Leo Durocher had a few things he wanted to get off his chest.

He talked about gambling and the way it pertained to playing cards. And, he finally opened up and revealed for the first time how he felt... inside... about losing it all to the Mets last year.

The business of gambling came up when someone in the room asked Leo Durocher how many players he had ever fined since he's managing and he said one, Joe "Ducky" Medwick, and then added he sometimes will tell one of his players he has been fined but doesn't ever take his money.

"You take their money when you beat them playing cards though, don't you?" said the same guy who asked the first question.

"Never. Never have I taken money from a player playing him cards," Durocher said. "Remember Higbe?" (former Dodger pitcher Kirby Higbe).

I'd play him gin all season long. Same thing now with Popovich (Cub utility infielder Paul Popovich). Every day I play him gin. I think he owes me $400 dollars. The other day he owed me $1600 dollars. But we just keep playing. No money ever changes hands. What's wrong with that? It's all fun."

Vancouver, Joe Grzenda has seen the sights.

But before Tuesday night, Grzenda, now with Washington, his fifth big league club, had the unusual distinction of never having started in the majors. All that was changed when the Senators called upon him to face the Boston Red Sox in place of scheduled starter Casey Cox who had been complaining recently of persistent headaches.

Grzenda, despite some first-inning miscues on the part of his teammates, responded with a three-hit effort over 8 1-3 innings before needing Cox's help in getting the final two outs and nailing down the Senators' 7-5 victory.

Didn't Know What To Think Grzenda admitted, "I didn't know what to think in the first inning" when the Senators made three errors, leading to three Boston runs on only one hit. Fortunately, Grzenda was working on a five-run lead supplied him in the top half of the inning, two of the runs scoring and homered in the sixth while Tony Conigliaro collected two of the three hits allowed by Grzenda, a two-run triple in the first and a two-run homer in the ninth.

In other AL games, Detroit shutout New York, 3-0, Baltimore blanked Cleveland, 7-0, Minnesota topped Milwaukee, 6-2, California downed Oakland, 4-2, and Chicago edged Kansas City, 3-1.

In the National League, Los Angeles whipped San Francisco, 19-3, Chicago beat Pittsburgh, 6-3, Atlanta stopped Houston, 5-3, New York beat St. Louis, 5-1, Philadelphia edged Montreal, 3-2, and San Diego swept a doubleheader from Cincinnati, 8-1 and 4-1.

Willie Horton slammed a three-run homer off Mel Stottlemyre with one out in the ninth inning to break up a scoreless duel and give the Tigers their win over the Yankees. Horton's homer was his sixth of the season and allowed Earl Wilson, who stopped the Yanks on four hits, to pick up his third win while Stottlemyre's record dipped to 4-4.

Suffers Sixth Loss Jim Hardin allowed only five hits and Chico Salmon backed him up with four singles in the Orioles' triumph over Cleveland. Boog Powell batted in two runs with a single and sacrifice fly as Cleveland starter Dean Casey suffered his fifth loss in six decisions.

"I fined one guy in my life and it was a guy I roomed with eight years," Durocher said. "Who was the guy?" one of those in the room asked the Cubs' manager.

"Medwick," he said. "It was with Brooklyn and we just got him from the Cardinals," Durocher said. "We paid $200,000 dollars for him and in the first game he played for us a ball got past him in left field and he walked after it. So I fined him $200."

Then the conversation swung to last season. "You've never come out and said how you really felt about the Mets coming on to beat you," a guy in the room put it to Durocher. "Why won't you tell anybody how you felt inside?"

"How do you think I felt?" Leo Durocher said. "I played Casey Stengel in the 1951 World Series and he beat me. I went over to him and said 'Congratulations, Casey' everybody said 'What a great sportsman that Durocher is.' Bull fiddle. You think I liked doing what I did? I didn't care anything about congratulating Stengel. I wanted to hit him in the head. Who wants to lose? Show me anybody who loves to get beat, who just stands there and smiles when he loses, and I'll show you an idiot."

FORTIN TRADED ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Defenseman Roy Fortin was traded Tuesday by the St. Louis Blues to the Los Angeles Kings for defenseman Bob Wall.

12 Speedsters Have Shot At 500 Saturday

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Popular Freddie Agabashian, who once placed a diesel-powered car on the pole, figures no less than a dozen speedsters have a fine chance to win Saturday's 500-mile Memorial Day auto race.

Looking over the 33-car field surviving after two weekends of time trials, he predicted record speeds possibly for the distance, barring a rash of serious accidents that would slow the pace.

"It should be one of the finest races ever," said curly-haired Freddie, at 56 still trim and with the same enthusiasm that marked his 11-year career at the Speedway.

It was 18 years ago that Agabashian, of suburban San Francisco, put a diesel on the pole as the fastest first-day qualifier at a speed of 138 miles per hour.

Al Unser drove 32 miles faster for the pole this year, and that wasn't even a record. "Without a doubt, Unser will go all-out from the start," said Agabashian. "It's going to be a good helmet dash to get into the first corner first, and Mario Andretti will be there with the leaders after the first lap."

Andretti, the defending champion, starts in the middle of the third row.

The other drivers to watch, said Agabashian, include three-time race winner A. J. Foyt and Johnny Rutherford, both also front-row occupants; Dan Gurney, Jack Brabham, Lloyd Ruby, Mark Donohue, Art Pollard, Gary Bettenhausen, Roger McCluskey, Peter Revson, and Jimmy McElreath, although he starts in 33rd or last place.

Bowie Kuhn To Testify

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bowie Kuhn was the first witness today when baseball opened its case in the Curt Flood suit to overturn the reserve clause.

Flood's attorneys wound up their case Tuesday after the commissioner of the National Basketball Association, Walter Kennedy, and the president of the National Hockey League, Clarence Campbell, testified.

Baseball's attorney, Mark Hughes, then asked Judge Irving Ben Cooper to dismiss the case, arguing that Flood isn't a "slave."

"He was free to play baseball or not but he chose not to play and there is no law to make him play," Hughes said. "He is now free to follow another line of work, photography and portraits. He was not compelled to work for an employer to work off a debt. There is no compulsory service of a slave to his master."

But Judge Cooper denied the motion, saying, "This is nothing more than a refusal to enter judgment at this time." He said that he could make a ruling only "after an offer of proof by the plaintiffs."

Kennedy and Campbell outlined the differences between baseball and their sports. Campbell said that hockey has no such thing as the player option system used in basketball and football. Kennedy testified that his sport uses the reserve clause similar to baseball's whereby a player cannot play out his option and sign on to another club. But he noted the main difference is that there are two separate leagues in basketball bidding for the players' services.

He cited Oscar Robertson as the only case in which a player had a special clause in his contract which gave him the right to approve a trade. Robertson turned down a trade from Cincinnati to Baltimore and then was traded to Milwaukee with his approval.

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Defenseman Roy Fortin was traded Tuesday by the St. Louis Blues to the Los Angeles Kings for defenseman Bob Wall.

KELLEY SENT DOWN SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Dick Kelley was shipped by the San Diego Padres to their Salt Lake City farm club of the Pacific Coast League Tuesday. Kelley was sent down to make room for relief pitcher Roberto Rodriguez, who was purchased from the Oakland Athletics.

KORNEGAY TO PIPERS PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Robert Kornegay, a 6-7 forward from Hampton Institute, signed a contract Tuesday with the Pittsburgh Pipers of the American Basketball Association. Kornegay averaged 24.9 points and 13.4 rebounds a game last season.

WILLS HONORED STANTON, Mo. (UPI)—A room at the Meramec Caverns has been named the Wills room in honor of Los Angeles Dodger base-stealer Maury Wills. The room is located next to Lott Rock where Jesse James used to split up the loot with his gang.

Inside The Park Homer Gives Philadelphia Win Last Night

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

"Goofy things" were happening to the Philadelphia Phillies again Tuesday night, but for once, Frank Lucchesi could smile at them.

"A lot of goofy things are happening to us this year," Lucchesi said after Tony Taylor's unusual three-run, inside-the-park homer gave the Phillies a 3-2 victory over Montreal and moved them out of last place and ahead of the Expos in the National League's Eastern Division.

The ninth inning started with the Phils trailing Bill Stoneman, 1-0, when Del Bates singled and pinch-hitter Jim Hutton hit a double play grounder that Coco Laboy threw away.

Bryon Browne then hit a pinch single that Rusty Staub trapped in right and Hutton, thinking he had caught it, held up as Browne passed him and was out.

Phil Lead 3-1 Taylor followed with a deep drive that eluded Adolfo Phillips, who crashed into the fence and hurt his elbow. By the time Staub retrieved the ball, Taylor had scored an inside-the-park homer to give the Phils a 3-1 lead and they survived a homer by John Bateman in the last of the inning.

In other games, San Diego shocked Cincinnati twice, 8-1 and 4-1, Los Angeles drubbed San Francisco, 19-3, Chicago edged Pittsburgh, 6-3, Atlanta beat Houston, 5-3, and New York beat St. Louis, 5-1.

In the American League, Washington beat Boston, 7-5, Baltimore blanked Cleveland, 7-0, Chicago nipped Kansas City, 3-1, Detroit blanked New York, 3-0, Minnesota beat Milwaukee, 6-2, and California topped Oakland, 4-2.

Clarence Gaston collected six straight hits including two triples and a three-run homer and Nate Colbert had a pair of homers as San Diego routed Cincinnati twice. But the Reds still lead the West by 5 1/2 games. Gaston was 2-3 in the first game and 4-for-4 in the second contest.

Jim Merritt, 9-3, suffered the loss in the first game while Borbon, making his first major league start, lost the second one for the Reds. Mike Corkins went 6 1-3 innings to win the opener and Danny Combs lasted seven innings to win the second game.

Drives In Four Runs Claude Osteen drove in four runs with a homer, double and two singles as he coasted past San Francisco while allowing 12 hits. Los Angeles tied the club records with a 20-hit barrage off Rich Robertson and four relievers.

Ron Swoboda drove in four runs with bases-loaded singles in the first and ninth innings as the Mets beat St. Louis. Ray Sadecki pitched a seven hitter to get the win for the Mets while Mike Torrez took the loss.

Bob Tillman's two-run homer in the sixth powered Atlanta past Houston. Rico Carty went 2-for-4 to raise his average to .424. Larry Dierker, 8-4, lasted six innings and got the loss. Jim Nash, 6-1, with relief help from Hoyt Wilhelm in the last two innings, picked up the victory.

Ron Santo and Jim Hickman each knocked in a pair of runs to back Ken Holtzman's seven-hit pitching as the Cubs downed the Pirates. Steve Blass gave up eight hits in 4 2-3 innings while suffering the loss.

FAIRS PLAY ROLE IN AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT

What role do county fairs play in agriculture?

This is a question frequently asked by students do research on agriculture and cultural activities. Another question is whether county fairs are on the rise or in decline.

With the start of the fair season drawing near, questions take on a greater significance. Persons who participate in, or attend a fair, might have these questions in mind.

As to the role that fairs play in agriculture, it should be noted that some of the earliest and most important agricultural expositions held in this country were conducted by county fairs. Because these fairs were operating the benefits of community facilities such as we have today, fairs served as a place where breeding and management data could be shared.

Too, these fairs enabled farmers to put their crops on display, and promote their products. If not wanting to travel, one could attend a fair to view the best of many farms.

Although our community methods have advanced in many ways, fairs still play a role in agriculture. They are educational, and an indirect means of promoting the industry.

Beyond these more obvious benefits of a good county fair, the sense of appreciation one can get from seeing the products of our labor and the fruits of our land on display is another benefit.

Are county fairs on the decline in Kentucky? While not having actual figures, I do know that many reported record crowds. The total number of fairgoers in recent years has been in the millions. Like with other organizations, this has helped to sustain the remaining fairs.

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture, through its Division of Shows & Fairs, promotes better county fairs. This is accomplished through the allocation of funds for the improvement of the meeting certain requirements.

This monetary aid can be given in support of agricultural exhibits. Participating fairs spend $22 for approved class year, participating fairs $102,004 for approved class year, participating fairs $102,004 for approved class year, participating fairs $102,004 for approved class year.

This same growth realized in the total number of agricultural exhibits. With providing good equipment for the non-farm fairs are playing an important role in the advancement of our State's basic industry.

Because these pioneer farmers were operating without the benefits of communication facilities such as we have today, fairs served as tools through which breeding and management data could be demonstrated.

Too, these fairs enabled a farmer to put his crops and livestock on display, and thereby promote his products. A farmer not wanting to travel, seeking out good seed or breeding stock, could attend a fair or exhibition and view the best from many farms.

Although our communication methods have advanced in quality and quantity, fairs still offer farmers these same benefits. They are educational, promotional and an indirect marketing tool.

Beyond these more tangible benefits of a good county fair is the sense of appreciation that one can get from seeing the products of our labor and the fruits of our land on display.

Are county fairs on the decline in Kentucky? While I do not have actual figures on attendance at local fairs last year, I do know that many fairs reported record crowds. As for the total number of fairs held, some fairs have been discontinued in recent years. However, like with other organized activities, this has helped to strengthen the remaining fairs.

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture, through its Division of Shows & Fairs, seeks to promote better county fairs. This is accomplished through the allocation of funds to fairs meeting certain requirements.

This monetary aid can only be given in support of approved agricultural classes. In 1968 participating fairs spent $46,922 for approved classes. Last year, participating fairs spent $102,094 for approved classes.

This same growth has been realized in the total number of agricultural exhibits. So, along with providing good entertainment for the non-farmer, county fairs are playing an important role in the advancement of our State's basic industry.

Bridges To Be Target For Tourists

By Jim Warren

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Covered bridges in the Commonwealth will be a prime target for tourists when the warm sun spurs thousands to the search for interesting and historic places this summer.

Covered bridges once commonplace in Kentucky, are disappearing—lost to fire, the demands of modern traffic, and decay. As late as the 1940's there were 45 covered bridges in Kentucky. Only 17 survive today.

The covered bridge was sort of a community center in the early days. People gathered for camp meetings and picnics. Under the bridge's roof an early farmer could cool his tired horses, steal a kiss from his girl, or read the advertisements which adorned the walls.

Covered bridges were born when builders found that timbers lasted much longer when kept dry and protected from weather. The first was built in Switzerland.

Kentucky's bridges were built by carpenters—turned—engineers who performed their labor of love without blueprints or formal plans.

Most Kentucky covered bridges were built from yellow poplar timbers cut from trees five feet and more in diameter.

Early builders found that poplar timbers resisted weather and insect attacks and if kept dry lasted indefinitely. The bridge's only natural enemies were fire and man himself.

The bridges were built when iron and steel beams were not to be had and a builder just walked to a nearby forest and cut the materials needed. Some of these bridges still carry traffic 100 years later—a tribute to the skill of the builders and the strength of their materials.

Some of the best known remaining covered bridges are the Switzer Bridge in Franklin County, the Beech Fork Bridge in Washington County, and the Sherborne Bridge on State Route 11 which still carries loads up to ten tons.

Some of the most famous bridges have been lost, such as the Cynthia Bridge across the Licking River and the Hickman Bridge at Camp Nelson which was the longest wooden cantilevered bridge in the U. S. Both were removed to make way for new bridges.

The Kentucky Covered Bridge Assn., formed in 1964, collects covered bridge history, and encourages the preservation of the bridges. Through the group's efforts the Blaine Creek Bridge in Lawrence County was saved.

The future of the covered bridges is still in doubt because most counties lack funds to repair and restore them. New highways, reservoirs, and water storage projects threaten the bridges with destruction and others simply are falling down.

While the fate of the bridges is being decided, the opportunity to visit them is still with us. The old structures should be seen by all as examples of a day and way of life not so long past.

Summer coiffures derive their name from the question mark that outlines the back of the head when seen in profile, according to the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association. Starting at the top crown area where there is a slight rise, and then down to the elongated nape, the scroll of the question mark delineates the head and gives it a gracefully poised look.

Junior 4-H Week Set June 1 to 4

LEXINGTON, Ky. — "What do you want to be when you grow up?" Boys and girls start hearing this question and wondering about their future careers very early in life.

Next week, 800 young people already beginning to grow up will look for possible answers to this familiar question during Junior 4-H Week here at the University of Kentucky, June 1-4. These 4-H'ers from all parts of the state will be seventh, eighth or ninth graders this fall.

During daytime conference sessions they will explore the opportunities offered in a variety of careers, as well as the requirements in these fields. Assemblies at night will stress opportunities in 4-H and in various areas of personal development. "Your Future" is the theme of the conference, which opens Monday afternoon, June 1.

Featured speaker will be a former Miss America, Miss Marilyn Van Derbur, who will talk to the group on Wednesday night.

Now United Airlines Speaker, Miss Van Derbur is well-known as a speaker to youth groups on the topic "Goals and Dreams" and as a television personality.

The public is invited to attend the Wednesday night session at which Miss Van Derbur will speak.

Other speakers on the night programs will include: Dr. Charles E. Barnhart, dean of the UK College of Agriculture and Extension Service and Agricultural Experiment Station, who will welcome the group on Monday night; Dr. H. H. Van Horn, assistant director of Extension for 4-H, who will preview the conference program on Monday night; and Dr. C. Bronson Lane, UK Extension dairy specialist, who will discuss "Opportunities in 4-H for Moral and Spiritual Development" at the night session.

In addition, a panel made up of Miss Donna Harding, Roberts county, Kentucky 4-H president; Kenneth Perkins, Taylor county, state 4-H vice president; and Dr. Van Horn, as moderator, will discuss other 4-H opportunities at the Tuesday night session.

Rev. Sam Vander Meer of Morris Fork will be in charge of vespers each night.

On Tuesday morning, the young people will begin their look at career possibilities. Divided into small groups, the delegation will hear about many different kinds of careers—the type of work done in each field and the preparation needed for it.

At the end of the Wednesday afternoon sessions, each 4-H'er will have learned about four major work areas and explored the many job opportunities in each field. At UK, they will visit the Colleges of Engineering, Home Economics, and Agriculture and hear speakers describe the various careers in each of these areas.

The groups also will tour the Central Kentucky Area Vocational School, learning about the different kinds of jobs for which young people are trained at Kentucky's Vocational Schools and visiting classes to hear what is being taught.

Even the conference "fun" sessions will have a career exploration theme.

A Volkswagen Station Wagon will take half a ball game to a ball game. It will hold nine players, three pieces of luggage, balls, bats, bases, and a goodly supply of crying towels. It will do all that while averaging a good 23 miles to a gallon of gas, a line 14 feet comparable to a 400 or winning 30 games!

It will do all that on 5 pints of oil (average 5 quarts). (Like going 5 for 20!) It will do all that without a radiator. It will water to boil over, no errors! And finally, it will do all that for as little as $2,875.25. Now, it's your turn to play ball.

Sao Paulo attracts the man on the lam

By JOHN VIRTUE
SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — Latin America's largest city is a haven for those escaping the law or persecution back home.

This city of 6.3 million has what attracts exiles and fugitives—size that provides anonymity and a population composed of 90 different nationalities—as well as the live-and-let-live philosophy of the Brazilians.

Those who have sought refuge have ranged from Texas ball jumper Ben Jack Cage to Capt. Henrique Galvao, who hijacked the Portuguese luxury liner "Santa Maria" in 1961, to Treblinka concentration camp commandant Franz Stangl.

Cage, sentenced in Houston, Tex., to 10 years for embezzlement, fled to Brazil in 1958 during an appeal of his conviction. Now a Brazilian citizen, he cannot be extradited.

Galvao, now 73 and in poor health, hijacked the "Santa Maria" to draw attention to the political situation in Portugal. He was also one of the first plane hijackers, organizing the same year the seizure of a Portuguese airliner flying from Casablanca to Lisbon.

Gen. Humberto Delgado, the Portuguese opposition leader with whom Galvao worked, was also an exile in this industrial city until slain in 1965 on the Spanish border while trying to reenter Portugal.

Stangl entered Brazil shortly after World War II under his own name, but no one at the time connected him with German concentration camps. Arrested in 1967 while working at a German automobile factory in Sao Paulo, he was extradited to Austria, accused of killing 700,000 Jews during the war.

Another former Nazi, Herbert Cukurs, had two small airplanes and used to sell rides on weekends. He was lured to Montevideo in 1965 and slain by an Israeli vengeance group.

There are many former Nazis living in Sao Paulo's large German community. Martin Bormann and Joseph Mengele, the two most wanted Nazis, have been reported seen in Sao Paulo over the years.

Sao Paulo also has a large Lebanese community which attracted the late Lebanese banker Yusuf Beidas two years ago when his Interbank group failed. He was later expelled from Brazil.

Former French premier Georges Bidault, who opposed Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Algerian policy, lived in exile in the satellite city of Campinas until three years ago when he returned to France.

Ironically, Brazil law greatly limits the professions and activities of its foreign residents. For instance, a non-citizen cannot teach secondary school nor own land on the ocean front.

NO PLANS FOR RECALL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite continuing personal attacks on him by antiwar demonstrators, the State Department says it has no plans to recall Ambassador Jerome H. Holland from Sweden.

The State Department said Monday that Swedish press reports that recall of Holland, a black educator, is imminent "are speculative. There is no basis for them." Sweden long has opposed U.S. policy in Southeast Asia.

Eggs were thrown at Holland's limousine Sunday.

Diabetic Camp Planned For This August

The fifth annual non-profit JAMES ROBERT HENDON CAMP FOR DIABETIC CHILDREN (formerly known as the Kentucky Camp for Diabetic Children) will be held from August 9 through August 22. It will be located at a new camp site this year, Camp Kysoc, which is owned by the Kentucky Easter Seal Society and is located two miles from Carrollton, Ky. across the highway from General Butler State Park.

The Kentucky Diabetes Association, which is composed of a group of Kentucky physicians especially interested in the treatment of diabetes, sponsors this camp because diabetic youngsters are almost never accepted at other camps. In addition to enjoying the experiences of camp life they will also learn about the care of their disorder in a group of other diabetic youngsters whose problems are largely the same.

The camp facilities include a spacious lodge housing the dining hall, a large program room and kitchen, administration building, service building, health center, nine camper villages with three cabins each, two craft buildings, heated swimming pool, shower houses, blacktopped trails, a boat dock and a fishing dock on a 20 acre lake.

There will be a highly trained staff of counselors including professional recreation personnel, college students, teachers and other persons in the recreation fields. There will be no counselors-in-training.

The campers will be under medical supervision with two physicians and two registered nurses at the camp. A trained dietitian will supervise the dietary needs of the campers. The camp fee will be the same as last year, $110.00 though this year's camp will offer many more advantages. A limited number of camperships will be available in special circumstances on a need-and-first-request basis. Some of the camping activities will include swimming, ball games, row-boating, fishing, arts and crafts, over-night camping, archery, nature hikes, cookouts, pontoon boating, plays, canoeing, campfires, hay rides, square dances, special events, parties and many more. Instruction will be given to the campers in the essentials of diabetic care, including how to give their own insulin injections.

The camp has been renamed in honor of its founder Dr. James Robert Hendon of Louisville, Ky. The preparatory years leading to the first camp sessions were extremely difficult ones. It was due to Dr. Hendon's continuous efforts, dedication and optimism that the camp became a reality.

Further information and camp applications may be received from the JAMES ROBERT HENDON CAMP FOR DIABETIC CHILDREN, 204 Fincastle Building, Louisville, Ky. 40202. Or telephone 893-5997 or 585-4828, Area Code 502.

Witchcraft is no joke in Bolivia

By MAX JENNINGS

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI)—She sits on a little cobblestone street in La Paz and dispenses her potions from old instant coffee cans, but very seldom does she smile, because witching in Bolivia is a very serious business indeed.

The "brujas" or witches of La Paz are so popular they have their own special witches' market, a series of little packing box booths set up on the back streets of this 12,000 foot high city. The witch business is booming, and the prices aren't cheap. One witch interviewed was very serious about it all. Squealing out from under her brown derby, the universal head piece of the Bolivian Indian woman, she talked about first one cure and then the other.

As she spoke, she sold a little sack of her goods to a smiling man in his mid 20s.

"It is for my mass," he said. "I use it in the mass in my home." He walked off happily with his sack of little candies and colored wool.

The witch, young and round faced, pulled her poncho tightly about her shoulders and set out a basket of llama embryos where they would better attract her customers. The unborn animals were dried and looked pitiful, lying there in the filthy basket.

Although many of the vendors on the streets of La Paz speak only the Indian languages, this witch spoke good Spanish.

"These," she said, holding up a llama fetus, "are to be wrapped in wool and buried with these." She held up a little sack of candies. "Put these under the principal stone of your house and it will keep away the evil spirits."

She shook a few seeds from one of her rusty cans, and explained how they could be mixed along with several other herbs she was selling to make a bath. When the person bathes in the brew, she said, he is assured all the evil spirits will be purged from his body.

Serious business

Although educated Bolivians for the most part laugh at the witches, there is a larger part of the population that takes it all most seriously. Conjurors—old men who come into town on the weekends—make as much as $10 explaining to the believers how to mix the various potions to catch a lover or cure an illness.

The "witchery" of Bolivia does not stop at the simple brewing of harmless mixtures, but involves the more sinister forms of black magic, too, and Bolivians often don't have to look beyond their doorstep to find it.

A lawyer at the city of Oruro 130 miles from La Paz returned home one day to find a grusome present from an enemy wishing to cast him under an evil spell. It was a cat, horribly mutilated by pins sticking through all parts of its body, but still alive.

"Around his throat was a black ribbon that was supposed to bring death," the man's daughter said. Attached to the animal's ears were little bags of herbs designed to bring bad luck, disease and misfortune with money.

The lawyer shrugged and disposed of the poor animal, but such things deeply worry some Bolivians. One explained: Bolivia is a land of legends, mysteries. Every body is superstitious here.

In this underdeveloped country of almost 4 million people, an estimated 70 per cent are illiterate. For them, black magic and witches are not to be laughed at.

Well-meaning friend made mistake

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Recently a friend of mine had an operation, and shortly before she was taken to the operating room I called her on the telephone and read a little prayer to her. She thanked me for calling and hung up.

The next thing I knew, I got a call from her husband, telling me in no uncertain terms that I shouldn't have done that as I had upset his wife, but plenty.

Abby, I had an operation a few years ago myself, and before my surgery, my doctor came in and asked me to say a little prayer with him, and it made me feel better.

Please tell me if I made a mistake. MEANT WELL

DEAR MEANT: Even tho' you "meant well," if it upset your friend, you made a mistake. [P. S. I believe in prayer, but if my surgeon came in and asked me to "pray" with him, I don't know whether I'd pray doubly hard or find another surgeon.]

DEAR ABBY: You told LONG BEACH WIFE to quit nagging her husband about not wearing his wedding band, and my husband pointed out your answer victoriously. However, our problem is slightly different.

My husband wears his wedding band only when it suits him. For instance, he takes it off and leaves it home when he has class (he's still in college), or if he's going to have a "night out" with the boys.

I'm not saying he is up to anything, but it sure looks suspicious. I would rather he didn't wear his ring at all than to have him pick it up and put it down like a yo yo.

To me, a wedding band is not just a piece of jewelry, it's a symbol of a commitment. This part-time wedding band business is driving us apart. How do you feel about it? FULL-TIME WIFE

DEAR FULL: Either your husband is intentionally trying to make you jealous, or he needs to take a course in elementary psychology.

DEAR ABBY: My son will be married soon and he and his bride-to-be have decided that an evening sit-down dinner reception for 200 guests should not include small children.

I want very much to have my three grandchildren present at the wedding and reception. They are 6, 4, and 3 years old. I am sure it would be a wonderful memory for them.

Doesn't a parent of the bride or groom have a say in this matter? Who is the final authority? GRANDFATHER

DEAR GRANDFATHER: The final "authority" is the bride couple. Don't press it. To attempt to make "exceptions" of your grandchildren would be unfair. And unwise.

DEAR ABBY: My husband wears a hearing aid, and when we're at a cocktail party he turns off his hearing aid and goes to sit in a corner. Many people think he's anti-social or snobbish, but it's not true. He says that when some folks (especially women) get a few drinks in them, they tend to laugh and shriek extra loud, and the sound, when amplified thru his hearing aid, feels like a "knife" in his ear.

Abby, you would be doing people who wear hearing aids a big favor if you asked your readers to be a little more considerate. SAN DIEGO

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal.

90000. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90000, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Searching The Truth

"What is happening to our young people? They disrespect their elders, they disobey their parents. They ignore the laws. They riot in the streets inflamed with wild notions. Their morals are decaying. What is to become of them?"

The above statement sounds like it came from some "old-timer" who is "turned off" by disrespect. Actually, it was written by Plato nearly 2,500 years ago!

Any one who sincerely believes and lives according to the moral teaching of the Bible is appalled by the flagrant disrespect for virtuous living. All around we see the evidence of legalized immorality. Sensual, sexual appeals are used to sell everything from toothpaste to bulldozers. Homosexuality, we are told, is not to be condemned, but to be understood. A CBS news report showed that some universities have "Gay Dances" for homosexuals.

But young people are not the problem. They are the result or product of failure by parents and a generation that has forgotten God. Today's disrespectful, immoral rioters against law and authority are the people who were not brought up "in the discipline and instruction of the Lord." (Eph. 6:4) Many parents have permitted their children to participate in questionable, if not sinful activities, and have allowed them to dress immodestly because they were forced to do so by social pressure. They were afraid their child would be isolated and rejected by "the crowd," so they went against their better judgment.

This is not time for "I told you so preaching," but it is evident that we are reaping what we have sown. (Gal. 6:7,8) It is time to return to the purity of the Bible, for "righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people." (Prov. 14:34)

Now, not later, we must begin to teach and practice respect for the authority of God and his word. "Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? By taking heed thereto according to thy word." (Psa. 119:9) "... Make not provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof." (Rom. 13:14)

Goober Day Lives With Geo. Lindsey

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Goober Day is just a memory in Jasper, Ala., but it still lives in the heart of George Lindsey in whose honor it was held back in 1964.

Lindsey essays the role of Goober in the "Mayberry R.F.D." television series playing a bumpkin of outrageous proportions.

College educated, a tennis player and soft-spoken gentleman off-screen, Lindsey remains a hayseed purposely. It is the springboard of his humor. He is positive the rube is a stock character in American comedy which dissolves with analysis.

"Give you an example," he said at lunch. "When I was down home for Goober Day I heard one lady ask another, 'How can George earn a decent living working only 30 minutes a week?'"

"Simple Country Humor."

"That's simple country humor, and the lady didn't know she was being funny."

"Another lady asked me if I was smoking all that dope like everyone else in Hollywood. She was especially suspicious of that terrible drug Morpholine."

Jasper population 10,799 is open only three days a week, according to native son Lindsey who played football at Florence State college in Florence, Ala.

"Florence is a university now," Lindsey said. "And it's a big city. Must have at least 30,000 people living there."

"But Jasper is the third biggest chicken processing city in the United States. We freeze 'em. Also the finest golf bags in the world are made in Jasper. Bet you didn't know that."

Lindsey has a quality that traces its origins back to Will Rogers, Bob Burns, Pat Buttram, Lum and Abner, Herb Shriner, Jim Nabors and Andy Griffith—the wide-eyed patsy from the sticks.

"Veneer of Stupidity"

It is a thin veneer of rural stupidity that covers a shrewd sense of timing, natural wit, self-deprecation and triumph over city slickers.

"Maybe there's a little bit of bumpkin in everybody outside New York City," Lindsey said. "Goober has a common sense IQ of 190 and a book learning IQ of about 50. 'Sure we depend on writers, but you have to bring your own sense of humor to the delivery, emphasizing certain words and phrases and moving your body to fit the lines.'"

Lindsey really thinks there will always be room for the rube on the tube.

Bit Parts: Joanna Barnes will co-star in "B.S., I love you" with Peter Kastner... the American Humane Association has registered a protest against "Patton" for alleged cruelty to animals involving two mules shot in the film... Cesar Romero has been added to the cast of "Men of the Tenth"...

More Assemblies missionaries

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI)—There was a 29 per cent increase in the number of Assemblies of God missionaries between 1959 and 1969 and the total of the denomination's appointed missionaries now stands at 1,018, in 82 countries, the Rev. J. Philip Hogan, executive secretary of the Assemblies of God foreign missions department reports.

In a review of the church's mission activities for the past decade, the Rev. Hogan also reports there are 91 overseas Bible schools run by the denomination, currently attended by more than 3,000 potential church leaders. In addition, 15,537 national workers already are engaged in Assemblies of God ministry to their own people.

Daybook of America 1770-1870-1970

By CLARK KINNAIRD

No. 45 Old South Meeting House in Boston (three centuries old this year), St. John's Church at Richmond, and other churches were on occasion rallying places for the men who brought on the War of Independence. It was at inns, taverns, coffee-houses where James Otis, Josiah Quincy, Jr., Sam Adams, Paul Revere, Patrick Henry, George Washington, and fellow patriots in other Colonies most often met in effecting resistance to oppressive measures. A reader is reminded of this anew in Revolution and Constitution: A Fresh Look at American History, by G. Bruce Woodin (Sterling Publishing Co.).

Much of consequence took place at the Green Dragon Tavern in Boston, Raleigh Tavern in Williamsburg, Tun Tavern at Philadelphia, Burns' Coffee House and Fraunces Tavern, in New York, to identify a few between Maine and Georgia. The tavern or inn was the social hall, town forum, emergency hospital, mail dispatch station, and therefore fount of news and gossip, as well as recruiting office for seaman or soldier. (The U.S. Marine Corps was started at Tun Tavern.) The tavern-keeper knew everything going on in, or through, his vicinity.

Broad & Pearl Sts., New York, was the patriot center of agitation after magnetic Samuel Fraunces went back in 1770 to the tavern he had opened there in 1762, first as Masons' Arms, then as Quedn's Head. His attention was diverted in 1765 to a fashionable amusement center, Vauxhall Gardens, located in Broadway. After his return by popular demand the former mansion of a wealthy Huguenot, Etienne de Lancy, was known as Fraunces Tavern.

Philip Freneau, eventually to be hailed as "the Poet of the Revolution," was to lyricize "Black Sam" as host par excellence. His was rendezvous of Sons of Liberty, the stopping place of patriots passing between Boston, Philadelphia and the South. Born in the British West Indies of Negro-French parentage, there was no wavering in his loyalty to the American cause. After the War, both New York Legislature and U.S. Congress were to vote Fraunces moneys for services to the patriots.

George Washington chose him as steward for the Presidential household in New York and Philadelphia. Fraunces, shown in a life portrait, died at the latter in 1794, leaving seven children. The Fraunces Tavern building was acquired in 1907 by Sons of the Revolution and restored as a museum (free) and tavern for tourists.

SPEAKING OF POLLUTION, a few days of the sanitation worker strike in Washington left sidewalks looking like this. There's the Capitol dome in the background.

Coast Guard repels mysterious invasion

ATLANTA (UPI)—The idea of a band of termites manning an amphibious landing craft or dropping from a plane in an airborne assault is a pretty ridiculous one. But, however they did it, an invasion force of termites made it from the Virginia mainland to a lonely lighthouse in Chesapeake Bay, two and a half miles out.

The Coast Guard, which managed to defeat the termites the first time around, now hopes the invasion won't be repeated. Termites need fresh water to survive so how they got to the lighthouse, offshore from Sunnyland, Va., remains a mystery. Both to the Coast Guard and the Atlanta-based pest control company which was called upon to eradicate them.

In addition to being far from the nearest dry land, the 74-year-old lighthouse is surrounded by sea water with an average depth of 17 feet and was erected on a concrete caisson sunk 40 feet into the bay bottom.

That appeared to rule out any possibility of the termites tunneling two and a half miles from land to the site.

Extermination experts believe the termites either flew or were blown to the lighthouse, or they were carried aboard with supplies for the Coast Guardsmen.

The damage to a wooden floor, wall and baseboard of the third level of the lighthouse was first thought to be dry rot by the Coast Guard. However, a study by the exterminating company and by Dr. John Osburn, Purdue University entomologist, confirmed the ravages stemmed from termites.

The termites are gone now and nobody is expecting their return—so long as there is some wood to tap for good luck.

Clear glass and Plexiglass give new home furnishings a see-through look.

Paul Shapiro Installed As JC President

Paul Shapiro was officially installed as president of the Murray Jaycees Monday night, May 18, at 8 p. m. at the club's annual installation banquet held at the Holiday Inn.

Shapiro, a 1963 graduate of the University of Kentucky Law School, is now a practicing attorney in Benton. He resides in Murray.

Other officers installed were Paul Fleming, internal vice-president, and owner of Grafik Advertising; Jerry Windsor, external vice-president; Jerry McCoy, secretary; and Mike Lyons, treasurer.

Wake Sexton, area vice-president, bestowed the oath of office to the newly elected officers.

Kentucky senator William L. Sullivan was the guest speaker. Sullivan, a past president of the Murray Jaycees, spoke on the subject, "It's A Big Wide Wonderful World." Sullivan stated that "human failure is the thread that runs so true."

Sullivan, now a resident of Henderson, is president pro-tem of the Kentucky Senate. A professional racer of airplanes, Sullivan was the 1950-60 commissioner of aeronautics. In 1956 he and Wendell Ford were elected "Outstanding Young Men" in the state of Kentucky.

Other guests present were Bob Carter, state secretary; Z. C. Enix, 1966-67 Murray Jaycees president; and John Sammons, 1959-60 president.

LATE GOVERNOR'S GRANDSON PROMOTED BY GRUBBS

W. Thomas Fields, a grandson of Kentucky's 1923-1927 Gov. William J. Fields, has been named assistant director of the industrial development division of the Kentucky Department of Commerce.

Commerce Commission Paul W. Grubbs described Fields as "one of Kentucky's best salesmen who has been instrumental in locating dozens of industries in our state."

Fields is a graduate of Frankfort High School and attended the University of Kentucky and the University of Notre Dame.

the total program of $29,557—with the university to provide the remaining one-third of the cost of the program.

Three classes were conducted during each semester of the current school year using federal funds provided in the first program grant.

Miss Eagle, who will again serve as director, expressed confidence that "the excellent response we experienced during the first year of the program will be continued next year."

She credited the assistance of local groups such as art guilds, chambers of commerce, and public school systems with helping in the effort to realize the maximum benefit from the program.

Noting that the non-credit classes are open to adults regardless of educational background, Miss Eagle emphasized that instruction by faculty members from the art department will be at the college level.

Studio classes will be limited in size up to a maximum of 30 people, she added, depending on the facilities available. She said a small fee will be charged in each class to cover costs of materials and facilities for the 16 class meetings.

She said the purpose of the program is primarily two-fold — to provide equal opportunity and experience in visual arts to individuals of the West Kentucky area and to motivate and encourage development of more community programs.

"The effort made during the first year of the program resulted in the formation of an art guild at Cadiz," Miss Eagle continued, "and helped to strengthen guilds in Hopkinsville and Paducah."

Murray State's one-third contribution to the program will take the form of instructional and administrative personnel, equipment usage, studio space, and materials.

Miss Eagle said tentative dates for fall semester classes during the next school year are Oct. 1 through Jan. 31, with spring term classes tentatively scheduled Feb. 1 through May 31.

She gave this tentative lineup of locations, classes and instructors for the fall term:

Calvert City—Textile design, Larry Edman.

Benton—Jewelry and enameling, Harry Furches.

Fulton or Clinton—Drawing, painting and design, Tony Droege.

Murray — Drawing, painting and design, Richard Jackson.

The tentative schedule for the spring semester includes: Eddsville or Princeton—Textile design, Edman.

Wickliffe—Jewelry and enameling, Furches.

Mayfield—Drawing, painting who easily won renomination in Tuesday's primary election, now must get down to the serious business of assuring themselves of a two-year return visit to Washington in November.

Most of the races were decided early. Three of the incumbents had no opposition. Of the four that did, all won handily. The surprising race occurred in the mountainous 7th District.

It was not until about midnight Tuesday that a Louisa accountant, Herbert E. Myers, 49, defeated a retired Lexington wholesale grocer, Henry H. Wheeler, 71, for the Republican nomination. The later returns, with 447 of 479 precincts reporting, gave Myers 1,757 votes to 1,706 votes for Wheeler.

Wheeler, who formerly lived in Ashland, was running his first race. Although he lives in Lexington, the state constitution allowed him to run outside his district.

But it all will probably prove to be an exercise in futility since Myers must run against highly popular U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins, a 57-year-old Hindman Democrat, who is the dean of the state's congressional delegation.

Here is the Nov. 13 line-up:

1st District
Incumbent U.S. Rep. Frank A. Stubblefield, D-Murray. No Republican filed. He is automatically reelected.

2nd District
Incumbent U.S. Rep. William H. Natcher, D-Bowling Green. Automatically reelected. No Republican or Democrat filed against him.

3rd District
Incumbent U.S. Rep. William O. Cowger, R-Louisville, vs. State Sen. Romano Mazzoli, D-Louisville.

4th District
Incumbent U.S. Rep. M. G. Snyder, R-Jeffersonville, vs. Charles W. Webster, D-Carrollton.

5th District
Incumbent U.S. Rep. Dr. Tim Lee Carter, R-Tompkinsville, vs. Lyle L. Willis, D-Corbin.

6th District
Incumbent U.S. Rep. John C. Watts, D-Nicholasville, vs. Gerald G. Gregory, R-Lexington.

7th District
Incumbent U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Hindman, vs. Herbert E. Myers, R-Louisia.

Political observers believe the only incumbent who may be in trouble in November is Cowger, and design, Droege.

Murray—Ceramics, Fred Shepard.

a former mayor of Louisville. He has been feuding with his local party leaders as well as the GOP administration in Frankfort. Added to this is the fact the Democrats recaptured city hall last fall and are expected to unite behind Mazzoli.

The confrontation could prove to be somewhat of a test of present U.S. Vietnam war policies. Mazzoli has called for a phased withdrawal of U.S. troops, while Cowger is regarded as more of a hawk.

Mazzoli defeated another "hawk," state Rep. Tom Ray of Louisville for the nomination. Although Mazzoli was favored, his near 4,000 vote victory margin was more than expected and impressed observers.

In the only race of general state implications, Republican incumbent Judge C. Homer Neikirk of Somerset and Democrat Bernard C. Davis of Shelbyville won their respective party's nominations for a full eight-year term on the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

The candidates had cross-field, meaning they ran on both Democratic and Republican ballots, in a vain attempt to avert a November run-off.

However, Neikirk made a surprisingly strong showing in generally Democratic counties of the 3rd Appellate District.

Neikirk was appointed to the bench last year by Gov. Louie B. Nunn following the traffic death of Chief Justice Morris C. Montgomery. With expected administration backing in November, he must be given a slight edge over Davis at this time.

A suit by the attorney general's office accusing the administration of soliciting votes for Neikirk apparently had no effect on the primary election.

Greek millionaire Aristotle Onassis and his American wife, the former Jacqueline Kennedy, spent $20 million of his estimated $25 million-a-year income during the first year of their marriage, according to a fiscal analysis of the couple's lifestyle by reporter Fred Sparks in a book, "The Pulitzer Prize-winning author holds that the Onassises still are putting aside a few dollars for their old age."

Today's Stock Market

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks showed a steady tone at the opening today in moderately active trading.

Few analysts expected any relief from the market's precipitous decline which has driven the Dow Jones Industrial average to its lowest level in more than 7 1/2 years. The closely watched blue chip barometer Tuesday fell 10.20 to 631.16, its lowest closing since Nov. 19, 1962, when it finished at 626.21.

Some caution, however, was expected to develop prior to President Nixon's dinner meeting tonight with leaders of the business and financial community.

Shortly after the opening, the UPI marketwide indicator was ahead 0.21 per cent on 344 issues crossing the tape. Of these, 132 gained and 104 declined. Steels showed scattered strength, while oils moved in irregular fashion. Motors were mostly steady.

American Telephone opened 1/4 higher at 43 1/4, while Textron gained 1/2 at 15 1/4, and ARA Services 1/2 at 7 1/4. Polaroid moved ahead 1/2 to 66 1/2.

Among the electronics, Control Data picked up 1 1/2 to 37 1/2, with Fairchild Camera up 1 1/2 to 28 1/4. Litton was unchanged at 17 1/2, as was Zenith at 22 1/4. Westinghouse rose 1 to 54 1/2, with Telex Corp. up 1/2 to 12 1/2 on a block of 15,000 shares. Memorex rose 1/2 to 71 1/2. Texas Instruments dropped 1 1/2 to 83 1/2.

In the automotive group, Chrysler gained 1/2 to 19 1/4. In the steels, U.S. Steel gained 1/4 to 31, while Bethlehem rose 1/2 to 22 1/2. Armco climbed 1/4 to 19 1/4.

Among the oils, Standard of California picked up 1/4 to 40, with Cities Service down 1/2 to 34 1/2. Gulf gained 1/2 to 22 1/2. Penn Central gained 1/2 to 13 1/2 in the rails. In the chemicals, Du Pont added 1/2 to 100 1/2.
